From the Charleston Mercury. GOOD NEWS FROM THE PULASKI.

Our readers will be not less surprised than delighted at the news from Wilming ton. It is good beyond the wildest hope In addition to the articles from the Advertiser, we have been favored with the following particulars, communicated in a letter to a gentlemen of this city, from which it will be seen that the people of Wilmington were making every exertion to preserve any who might still be floating on fragments of the wreck.

We regret to add that of the number thus miraculously preserved, there are only three belonging to our city, Mr. G. Y. DAVIS, Mr. ROBERT D. WALKER, and Master T. W. Downie, so far as we have been able to ascertain. We learn from a gentleman, passenger in the N. C:, and one of the number saved, that the following persons died on one of the rafts or fragments of the Pulaski, on which they had taken refuge :
